9.00 Tax strategies for HNWIs moving to Spain

Spain is an attractive destination for many HNWI who wish to live there. A correct understanding of the Spanish tax consequences is key to benefit from the existing opportunities and to avoid falling in unnecessary and costly situations. A proper pre immigration planning is key when dealing with cross border estate and wealth planning of these individuals.

During the session we will review the main planning strategies for HWNI individuals willing to move to Spain -or already living there- and will discover how HNWI can benefit from the current special expat regime ("Beckham regime"). We will review the latest case law and binding tax rulings, as well as the Spanish tax authorities' current approach to these and other matters, such as the day count for tax residency purposes, the validity of tax residence certificates from foreign jurisdictions, family business regime, etc. In addition, we will analyze the consequences of certain structures involving trusts, foundations and life insurances and how a proper asset allocation strategy can provide significant tax savings.

10.30 Coffee break

11.00 Tax Implications in Spanish Real Estate & Solar Investments

Real estate or solar projects in Spain, be it a luxury villa in Mallorca, a residential building in Madrid or a photovoltaic project in Andalusia, are attractive investments for many foreign wealthy individuals and institutional investors.

During the session we will discuss the main Spanish tax issues regarding these investments, with a focus on the direct and indirect taxes affecting the acquisition, maintenance and sale of residential, commercial and solar projects in Spain. In this section we will also review the hot topics and current trends on case law and the tax authorities' position on the structuring of these projects.
